Marwah Films & Video Production

Sandeep Marwah, an originator in the film industry, not only founded the successful Asian Academy of Film & Television but also embarked on his filmmaking journey in 1994. Casting a cinematic spell, he carved a niche, championing cinema as an art form. He was associated in the production of 3500 short films and 150 feature films, which have been enjoyed by audiences.

In the illustrious arena of accolades, Marwah's masterpiece, 'Coffee House,' claimed the title of Best Film at the 3rd International Women Film Festival. Further crowning his achievements, 'I AM' earned the prestigious 'Best Film of the Year' honor at the President's National Award in 2012. Internationally, the Gdynsk Film Festival of Poland dedicated a special segment to showcase his films, while the Hungarian Film fraternity honored him for 'Shoot for Life' in 2013, alongside recognition at the International Film Festival of Egypt. Today, Sandeep Marwah stands as a distinguished film producer, commanding respect and acclaim on both national and international fronts. His cinematic odyssey stands as a resounding testament to the enchanting prowess embedded in the alchemy of storytelling, where narratives transmute into potent sparks for metamorphosis.

International Film & Television Club

With a strong desire to add value to film courses, Sandeep Marwah began the International Film and Television Club (IFTC) at the Noida Film City in 1995. The Club provides a platform for both amateur and well-established filmmakers to showcase their films at the film fest. As of now, it has organized about 10 major film festivals worldwide.

IFTC, under Marwah's visionary guidance, has orchestrated a remarkable decade long symphony of global film celebrations. At the forefront is the AAFT Festival of Short Digital Films, standing tall as the unparalleled pioneer, orchestrating a staggering 118 film festivals worldwide. This festival, a kaleidoscope of creativity, unfolded 3500 debut films from 3000 visionary directors across 100 countries. Notably, the 'Global Film Festival Noida' clinched the coveted title of the 'Most Happening Film Festival of the World' in 2012, an accolade bestowed by the discerning eyes of the World Film Festival Organization. This festival extravaganza, a cinematic carnival, unveiled 540 films and 52 events, captivating the hearts of 17,000 captivated spectators. In the realm of film festivals, orchestrated by Sandeep Marwah, innovation meets international acclaim, making each frame a stroke of cinematic brilliance.

International Film & Television Research Centre

The International Film & Television Research Center (IFTRC) stands as the instigating film & television research hub in the Indian private sector, a brainchild meticulously crafted by Sandeep Marwah in 1996. The core mission of IFTRC is to bolster the creation of meaningful visual media programs, facilitating purpose and impact. This dynamic center orchestrates regular debates, discussions, workshops, and seminars on diverse media-related subjects, creating a vibrant space for national and international media professionals, intellectuals, and public figures to engage with the press, television organizations, and media-focused students.

IFTRC extends its reach globally, establishing a formidable presence in numerous countries to amass insights for in-depth analysis and policy formulations. With a dedicated focus on research spanning films, television programs, and advertising in the visual media field, IFTRC tirelessly delves into multifaceted topics. The International Film & Television Research Center boasts of dedicated publication division, disseminating knowledge through research papers, periodicals, and books to a global audience.

The International Public Broadcasting Forum (IPBF)

Marwah Studios, under the visionary leadership of Sandeep Marwah, established the International Public Broadcasting Forum (IPBF) - a dynamic platform designed to inform, educate, and enthrall the public. This forum crafts and broadcasts radio and TV programs that go beyond mere entertainment, aiming to address societal issues often sidelined in the region of commercialized media.

IPBF acts as a guiding light, illuminating daily concerns by selecting individuals from diverse societies to provide insightful reflections and in-depth analysis. Not confined to traditional broadcasting, it supports and nourishes producers of non-commercial content, fostering a global exchange of ideas. Through lively debates, engaging seminars, and thought-provoking symposiums, IPBF embodies the essence of public service broadcasting, making it an indispensable hub for meaningful dialogue and societal enlightenment.

International Children's Film Forum

In the arena of the Indian private sector, Sandeep Marwah's creation, the International Children's Film Forum (ICFF), stands as a unique entity. This forum not only supports 'The Children's Film Society of India (CFSI), funded by the government but also believes in the enchanting power of moving pictures on young minds. ICFF goes beyond conventional education methods, organizing debates, seminars, symposiums, workshops and film festivals specifically tailored for kids. It meticulously researches films before screening them for children, aiming for a global exchange of children's films.

ICFF, under Sandeep Marwah's vision, not only recognizes filmmakers worldwide but also plays a crucial role in shaping the moral character and social behavior of the future generation. As the saying goes, "Every child is an artist; the problem is staying an artist when you grow up." ICFF endeavors to preserve and nurture this artistic spirit in children.

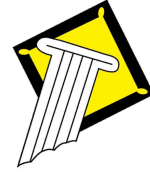

International Women's Film Forum

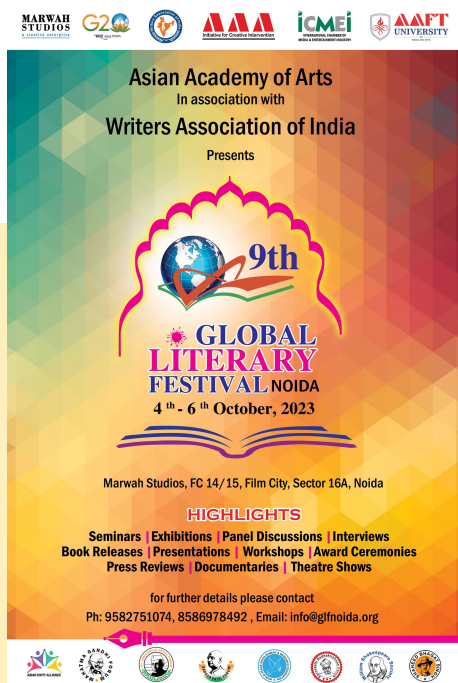

In the territory of cinematic advocacy, Sandeep Marwah takes center stage as the visionary behind the International Women's Film Forum, a potent platform aligning with the President of the Asian Society of Film & Television. This unique forum echoes the heartbeat of global femininity, tackling the intricacies of women's struggles in a predominantly male world. The International Film Forum, under Marwah's steadfast guidance, weaves a narrative of women's rights, empowerment, and their indelible contributions to society through screening of films made for women and by the women. Sandeep Marwah stands as a fervent proponent for granting women the rightful place they deserve. The International Women's Film Forum, thus, serves as a celluloid canvass painting the empowerment saga of women across borders.

MEC Art Gallery

Sandeep Marwah regards art as a means of expressing feelings, thoughts, and observations in a visual form, possessing its own grammar. According to him, this creative articulation guides all our senses toward symbolic expression by the artist. With the aim of bringing Indian art lovers closer to contemporary Indian art, he established the MEC Art Gallery in New Delhi in 1991, inaugurated by the former President of India, Giani Zail Singh. Renowned for exhibiting contemporary paintings and sculptures by established Indian artists and amateurs alike, the MEC Art Gallery supports artists by organizing art exhibitions, conferences, and the sale of their original artwork. As a tribute to the essence of art, Marwah believes, "Art speaks where words are unable to explain."

In the landscape of Fine Arts and Performing Arts, the Asian Academy of Arts (AAA) emerges as a sanctuary for aspiring talents under the Marwah Education Group's umbrella. This fortress of creativity, guided by the indomitable Sandeep Marwah, not only provides unyielding support but also serves as a transformative force for students and practitioners.

Here, diverse artists, including photographers, sculptors, and painters, converge to showcase their intrinsic talents, crafting a vibrant needlework of artistic expression. The exhibitions, orchestrated by this dynamic union, become a stage where these creators unfurl their genius, attracting the spotlight they rightfully deserve. Writers and poets, too, find a platform to illuminate the challenges and opportunities within the vast landscape of literature.

Sandeep Marwah, a connoisseur of these diverse art forms, stands as a leader, showering due recognition and sustaining the development of fine and performing arts.

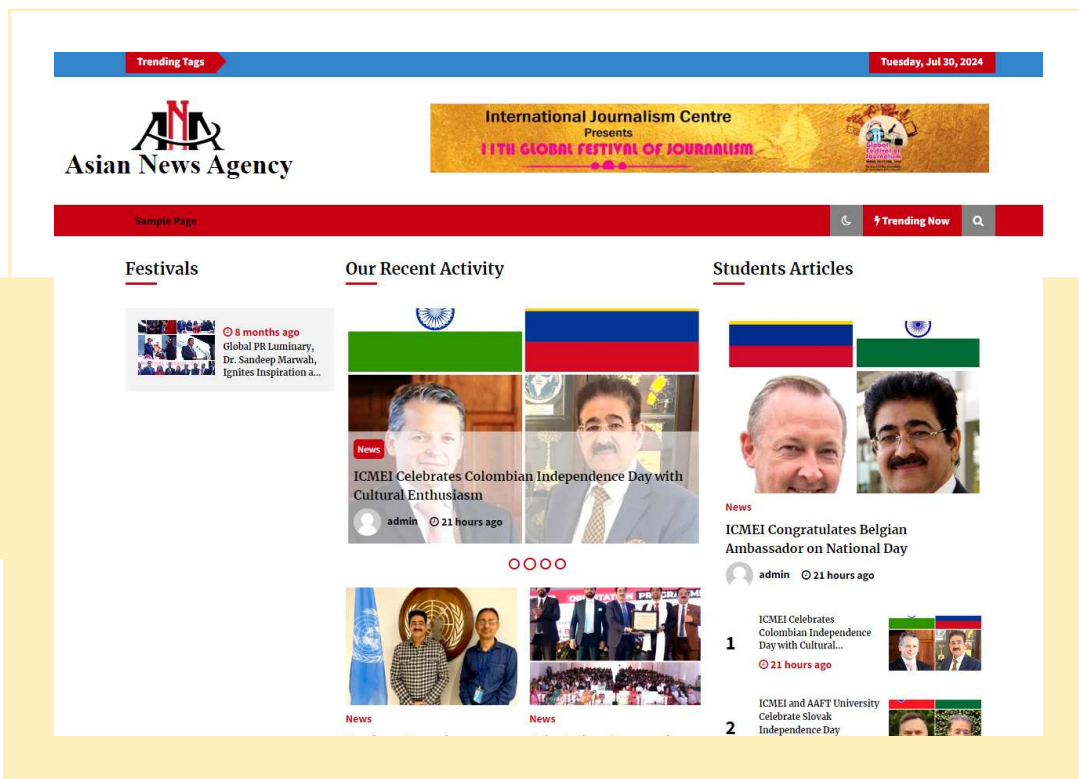

World Peace Development and Research Foundation

Dismayed by technological achievements leading to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and confronted with cross-border and internal armed conflicts worldwide, adversely impacting people, Sandeep Marwah established the World Peace Development and Research Foundation. In a country like India, striving to rediscover its soul after centuries of foreign domination, achieving enduring peace becomes paramount. The national approach to conflict must prioritize deterrence and dissuasion to enrich a peaceful atmosphere.

Inspired by Gandhian thought, emphasizing non-violence, goodwill towards all life, and hatred towards none, this Foundation champions the message of love, respect for diverse viewpoints, and peaceful co-existence.

Acknowledging the remarkable work undertaken by the Foundation, the Interreligious and International Foundation for World Peace in Korea nominated Sandeep Marwah as the Ambassador for Peace. Additionally, he has been honored with the title of Peace Ambassador at the House of Commons in the UK.

In the ever-evolving landscape of media and journalism, Sandeep Marwah fantasized a transformative venture that would transcend traditional boundaries. Enter the Asian News Agency - a powerhouse that reshapes the frontiers of news delivery. This powerhouse has emerged as a guiding light, supplying a rich array of news and soft stories to a diverse audience.

Led by Sandeep Marwah's visionary guidance, the agency stands tall as a leading provider, weaving together stories that captivate newspaper publishers, television channels, cable networks, and radio stations. Reporters, photographers, and TV journalists, strategically positioned nationwide, converge to gather authentic news and soft stories. The digital realm is not overlooked; material from the web and social networks is skillfully curated.

The heartbeat of Asian News Agency lies in its commitment to authenticity and highest journalistic standards. Under Marwah's leadership, it has become a dynamic force, delivering a blend of culture and entertainment news. As the agency continues to grow from strength to strength, it exemplifies a commitment to excellence, setting new standards in the dynamic field of news dissemination.
